IV. BACKGROUND

On September 16th, 2022, 22-year-old Mahsa Amini died while in custody of Islamic Republic of Iran's "morality-police," for not wearing her compulsory hijab, in accordance with the regime's stringent standards. Following Mahsa Amini's death, protests erupted in Iran nationwide and in more than 30 countries worldwide.

In response to the protests, in fewer than 30 days, the government of Iran has killed over 185 people (approximately 21 of whom have been under 18); a specific case being Nika Shakarami, a 16-year-old protestor, whose mother alleges that security forces beat to death.

In fewer than 30 days, thousands have been arrested/taken into custody while protesting - some are getting arrested simply for publicizing the events in Iran. To date, at least 20 human rights activists have been taken into custody. The daily the number of deaths and people taken into custody are escalating exponentially and the Iranian regime continues to demonstrate blatant disregard for human rights and human life.

Gender equality is a global issue: 70% of all people living in poverty are women, only 22% of world's political leaders are women, 1 out of 3 women experience sexual or physical abuse, 750 million women and girls were married before the age of 18 and at least 200 million in 30 countries have undergone female genital mutilation.
